DEFIANT: Appearing in an Iraqi court on Thursday, Saddam Hussein refused to accept blame for alleged atrocities committed during his rule and insisted he still had authority as Iraq's president. He was charged with mass killings and war crimes, including the 1990 invasion of Kuwait, and will likely face trial in 2005.

Saddam: Trial 'a Theater'

Deposed dictator rejects charges during court appearance

BAGHDAD, IRAQ | Saddam Hussein scoffed at charges of war crimes and mass killings Thursday, making a defiant first public appearance since being hunted down seven months ago. The deposed dictator fixed the judge with a penetrating stare and declared: "This is all a theater by Bush, the criminal."

Dressed in a charcoal-colored, pinstriped suit jacket, Saddam — whose day in court was shown on TV in the Arab world and beyond — looked thinner and better groomed than on Dec. 13, the day U.S. troops pulled him from a hole near Tikrit.

Unaccompanied by a lawyer, he was presented with seven preliminary charges that included gassing thousands of Kurds in 1988, the 1990 invasion of Kuwait, the suppression of 1991 revolts by Kurds and Shiites, the murders of religious and political leaders and the mass displacement of Kurds in the 1980s.

"I am Saddam Hussein, the president of Iraq," he said unprompted, sitting in a chair facing the judge across a wooden railing. When asked his name, he repeated it in full: "Saddam Hussein al-Majid, president of Iraq."

At times, Saddam, rather than the judge, seemed in command of the hearing, firmly signaling that he be allowed to speak. He occasionally lectured the young magistrate, making his points with emphatic hand gestures.

U.S. and Iraqi officials hope Saddam's trial — which will not take place until 2005 at least — will lay bare the atrocities of his regime and help the country recover from years of tyranny, the U.S.-led invasion and the insurgency that has blossomed in its aftermath. JIM KRANE (AP)

ANIMAL WATCH | Collared by Cows The credit for the bust goes to the bovines. A tip on the whereabouts of Parker Ray Elliott, suspected of fatally shooting his ex-wife and daughter and wounding his son, had led authorities Monday to search a Maury County,

Tenn., farm, where they caught a break. "I knew those cows should have been looking at me, since I had just come into the area," state parks employee Shane Petty said, "but they were looking over into the woods, so I knew that's where he was." (AP) EyeOpeners | Page 2

MONEY

Pennies for His Thoughts

A Los Angeles man is trying to get rid of his pennies — all 1 million of them. Ron England bet his brother 30 years ago that he could save a million pennies in exchange for a dinner in Paris. And he did, eventually stacking up 20,000 rolls that fill 13 boxes in his garage. Now that he's moving, England wants to cash in the $10,000 in coppers, which weigh 3.6 tons, but is having a tough time finding someone who will take them without charging a fee. England refuses to pay extra. "I'm stubborn," he said. "If I have to haul all these pennies to Oregon, I will, 'cause I'm not gonna pay." (AP)

Tourists Do The Dorkiest Things

Decades after the movie "Rocky" first flickered on screens worldwide, tourists like Mel Robinson of Ireland still flock to Philadelphia's Art Museum to charge up the steps like the fictional boxer played by Sylvester Stallone. Susan Ohmer, a professor at the University of Notre Dame, said research shows it's common for people to re-enact scenes when they're in movie settings. So a warning to D.C. tourists: Don't try to run through the Reflecting Pool like Forrest Gump. You'll only hurt yourselves. And stand to the right on Metro escalators. Thank you. (EXPRESS)

Foot in His Mouth

A podiatrist in Augusta, Ga., has been indicted for allegedly defrauding Medicare by submitting more than $400,000 in false claims, some for treating patients who don't even have feet. A federal grand jury issued the indictment last week accusing Dr. Russell J. Ellicott, a licensed podiatrist since 1986, of Medicare fraud and 21 counts of making false statements relating to health care matters, the Augusta Chronicle reported. Documents accused Ellicott of submitting false claims for treatment of patients who had died and patients whose feet had been amputated, including one who had been an amputee for nine years. (AP)

Schwarzenegger Fails to Negotiate Budget Agreement

California began the new fiscal year without a budget Thursday, as usual, despite hopes that Gov. Arnold Schwarzenegger would use his political muscle to negotiate a timely agreement. Thurmond was 22 when Williams, now 78, was born to a 16-year-old black maid working at his family's Edgefield home. (AP)

Cassini Reveals Saturn's Rings

Spacecraft beams back new photographs after entering planet's orbit

PASADENA, CALIF. | Hours after settling into orbit around Saturn, the Cassini spacecraft sent back "mind-blowing" photographs Thursday of the planet's shimmering rings that resembled a fine-grain piece of wood or a grooved phonograph record.

Scientists could not contain their excitement as the raw black-and-white pictures of the rings arrived at NASA's Jet Propulsion Laboratory from more than 900 million miles away.

The photographs showed concentric bands — some dark, some light-colored, some broad, some extremely narrow.

Cassini, a spacecraft the size of a bus, passed between two of the rings late Wednesday and settled into orbit around the giant planet to begin the most detailed study ever of Saturn and many of its 31 moons. Imaging team leader Carolyn Porco watched the photographs stream in before dawn.

"It was beyond description, really, it was mind-blowing," she said.

The $3.3 billion mission is funded by NASA and the European and Italian space agencies. Cassini is the first spacecraft to orbit the solar system's second-largest planet.

Cassini passed through the rings unscathed and was in perfect condition, program manager Robert Mitchell said.

The rings, which are made of ice and rock and have fascinated astronomers for centuries, were the mission's first priority in the minutes after achieving orbit because Cassini will never again be as close to them during its planned 76 orbits over four years. JOHN ANTCHAK (AP)

Military May Release Some Detainees

WASHINGTON | The Pentagon might release some Guantanamo Bay detainees deemed not to pose a security threat without first giving them access to civilian courts, a spokesman said Thursday.

Larry Di Rita, chief spokesman for Defense Secretary Donald H. Rumsfeld, told a news conference that no final decisions have been made about how the government will respond to Supreme Court decisions this week requiring that detainees be given a way to challenge their incarceration.

But he said it was possible that if it could be determined some people need not be held then they also "need not necessarily be part of a judicial process."

Di Rita referred to the Pentagon's newly adopted system for annually reviewing each of the nearly 600 detention cases at Guantanamo Bay. Under that system, a panel of three military officers would assess each case, but the detainees would not be represented by lawyers.

Separately, a group of human rights lawyers sent Rumsfeld a letter asking for access to 53 prisoners at Guantanamo Bay. (AP)

FBI Urges July 4 Vigilance

Police warned to step up patrols, but no solid threat indicated

WASHINGTON | The FBI urged police nationwide Thursday to step up patrols and watch for signs of terrorist activity during the Fourth of July weekend. Still, officials said there was no specific, credible intelligence indicating an attack was likely.

"We know the U.S. homeland remains a top al Qaeda target," the FBI said in its weekly bulletin to state and local law enforcement.

A constant stream of intelligence indicates that al Qaeda is determined to stage another major attack this summer or fall, possibly timed to one of a series of symbolic events in the United States and overseas, most notably the political conventions, national election and Olympics, but also the Fourth of July.

The FBI said police should increase patrols this holiday weekend, vary the timing, size and routes of the patrols, and make sure all vehicles illegally parked in key areas are approached and their drivers questioned.

The Homeland Security Department had no plans to raise the nation's color-coded terror alert level above its current mid-point status of yellow, or elevated. Last week, the agency sent a bulletin urging tighter security to state and local officials and those that operate power and chemical plants and key transportation facilities.

The government's approach to this major U.S. holiday was muted in comparison to Memorial Day, when the FBI and Attorney General John Ashcroft issued high-profile warnings that terrorists were nearly ready to strike. CURT ANDERSON (AP)

Poll: Traffic Relief Vs. Higher Taxes

WASHINGTON | Americans are so frustrated by traffic that more than half say they'd be willing to pay higher taxes if it really would improve things.

Fifty-five percent said traffic in their area had worsened in the past five years, and three in 10 said it was much worse, according to the survey conducted for the Associated Press by Ipsos-Public Affairs. Fifty-six percent said they would be willing to pay higher taxes if that would lead to improvements in roads and public transportation. (AP)

Jordan Would OK Iraqi Force

Abdullah: Hard to say 'no' if Iraqis ask for help

LONDON | Jordan's King Abdullah II said Thursday that Jordan is willing to send troops to Iraq — if they are requested by the new Iraqi interim government — potentially becoming the first Arab state to do so.

"I presume that if the Iraqis ask us for help directly it would be very difficult for us to say no," Abdullah said in an interview with the BBC television "Newsnight" program.

"Our message to the president or the prime minister is: Tell us what you want, tell us how we can help and you have 110 percent support."

The statement marked a major shift in Jordan's policy since the U.S.-led coalition handed power in Iraq to Prime Minister Iyad Allawi's interim government. Abdullah had initially refused to send troops.

Abdullah said he had not discussed the issue of sending troops with the new Iraqi government.

"I would feel that we are not the right people, but at the end of the day if there is something we can provide, ... then we'll definitely study that proposal," he said in the interview conducted in London.

There was no immediate reaction to Abdullah's comments, which will likely be welcomed by the U.S. government. It was unclear if the Iraqis would take Abdullah up on his offer. Iraq borders both Jordan, which maintains close relations with the United States, and Syria, which staunchly opposed the U.S.-led invasion.

Despite the promise of assistance, Abdullah said he perceived Iraq as a "sideshow." "The main problem that feeds on all the instabilities that we see in the Middle East is the Israeli-Palestinian problem," he said. "Until you solve that, then we'll never have the type of stability that the Middle East hopes for." JANE WARDELL (AP)

LOST IN THE CROWD: A policeman, bottom, surveys the throngs of people at Thursday's pro-democracy march in Hong Kong.

Thousands in Hong Kong Protest China

HONG KONG | Angered by Beijing's decision ruling out full democracy in Hong Kong, thousands of people marched Thursday to demand the right to choose their leader.

Organizers claimed 530,000 people participated in the march, which would put the rally on par with one that jolted the Chinese and Hong Kong governments exactly a year earlier. Police offered a lower estimate, saying about 200,000 people were there.

The crowd appeared less intense Thursday than it did a year ago, when Hong Kongers protested an anti-subversion bill many viewed as a threat to civil liberties. Chief Executive Tung Chee-hwa was shaken and withdrew the bill in an unprecedented political retreat.

Ordinary Hong Kong people, emboldened by that success, then set their sights on achieving full democracy. But in April, China ruled that Hong Kong citizens cannot directly choose their next leader in 2007 or all lawmakers in 2008. The demonstrators are sticking with their demands, however, even though analysts see little chance China will change its mind.

The march came on the seventh anniversary of Hong Kong's handover from British to Chinese rule. Apparently hoping to avoid embarrassment, China did not send any ranking leaders to the ceremonies this year. (AP)

U.S. to Hold Back Aid for North Korea

Powell says economic benefits won't flow until country disarms

JAKARTA, INDONESIA | Secretary of State Colin Powell said Thursday North Korea would be wasting its time if it holds out for economic benefits from the United States before showing serious intent to dismantle its nuclear weapons program.

"We have to see deeds before we are prepared to put something on the table," Powell told a news conference. He added, however, that if the North commits to disarmament, progress on a comprehensive deal could be swift. "We don't think that what's been asked for will be very difficult to achieve," he said.

Powell is here for the annual meeting of Pacific rim foreign ministers. North Korea's foreign minister is here but Powell said no meeting had been arranged as yet.

The United States and North Korea are part of a six-nation process — with China, South Korea, Japan and Russia — designed to end the impasse over North Korea's nuclear weapons program. A meeting of the six was held last week in China, with no sign of progress. (AP)

Afghan Vote Likely To Be Postponed

Top official concedes the government has fallen behind schedule

KABUL, AFGHANISTAN | Afghanistan's national elections — beset by deadly Taliban attacks, feuding warlords and political squabbling — are in jeopardy and may have to be delayed again, a top government official said Thursday.

After weeks of assurances that the vote would take place in September, Farooq Wardak, a senior member of the Afghan election management body, said the group cannot meet a deadline to schedule a vote that month.

Afghan law says the polling date must be set at least 90 days in advance, making Friday the last chance to announce a Sept. 30 election.

Wardak said the group would not reach a decision on a date until at least next week. "Much more consultation is required," he told the AP as he shuttled between meetings. "I'm hopeful that next week we'll have a decision."

Afghan President Hamid Karzai has pledged repeatedly to hold elections in September, despite mounting violence and concern that warlords and drug barons will use guns and wealth to cement their power.

Presidential and parliamentary elections were already delayed from June, and October is seen as the last chance to hold a vote before snow closes high mountain passes until spring 2005. STEPHEN GRAHAM (AP)

In Crippling Blow, Russia Hits Yukos With $7B Tax Bills

MOSCOW | The Yukos oil company suffered a double and potentially devastating blow Thursday: Hours after court bailiffs served papers giving the company five days to pay a $3.4 billion tax claim for 2000, the Tax Service said it wanted almost the same amount for 2001.

The new claim drives up government demands against Yukos to a crippling $6.7 billion.

Some analysts see the case against Yukos as a Kremlin-directed move to punish its former chief executive Mikhail Khodorkovsky, Russia's richest man, for his funding of opposition parties and to warn other billionaire Russian businessman to stay out of politics.

They say the company's only chance for survival is if control over its assets passes into more Kremlin-friendly hands. (AP)

WHO KNEW? U.N. talks on whether to create a global standard for Parmesan cheese were suspended for a year Thursday after it became clear the meeting was polarized between the European Union, which insists the real thing is made only near Parma in Italy, and countries such as the U.S. and Australia that also want to sell the cheese. Those countries say "Parmesan" has become a generic name for hard cheese that can be grated, and so it can be made anywhere. (AP)

Bid War Erupts Over MGM

Time Warner, Sony battle for purchase of venerable movie studio

LOS ANGELES | A bidding war has broken out for Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer Inc., with Time Warner Inc. offering about $3 billion in cash and stock for the venerable Hollywood studio plus the assumption of $2 billion in debt, according to newspaper reports.

The New York Times and The Wall Street Journal reported in Thursday editions that Time Warner has made a preliminary offer for MGM that rivals overtures from Sony Corp. The reports valued the deal at $13 cash per share for public shareholders, plus the assumption of nearly $2 billion in MGM debt. Majority shareholder Kirk Kerkorian would get $11.50 a share in Time Warner stock under the deal, The Times said.

A spokeswoman for MGM and a spokesman for Time Warner both declined to comment.

The reports of the rival bid for MGM sent the company's shares up 56 cents, or more than 4.6 percent, to close at $12.66 in heavy trading Thursday on the New York Stock Exchange. Time Warner's shares fell 17 cents to close at $17.41.

MGM, famous for "The Wizard of Oz" and the James Bond and the Pink Panther series, has been in talks with Sony for months over a sale for roughly the same price. MGM continued talks with Sony even after a 15-day exclusive negotiation period expired in late May.

Under that proposed deal, Sony would contribute about $1.5 billion of the $3 billion in cash needed to close the deal. The rest would come from Sony's financial partners, which include Texas Pacific Group and Providence Equity Partners. (AP)

Perfume Industry Pushes Celebrity Scents

NEW YORK | The latest trend in fragrances isn't about seductive scents or eye-catching bottles. It's all about the Hollywood star connection.

Marketers trying to lift the fragrance industry out of a three-year slump are signing deals with celebrities, hoping to attract devoted fans who want to buy scents endorsed by Britney or Beyonce.

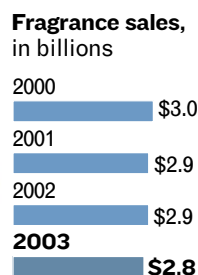

Elizabeth Arden Inc. signed Britney Spears to market a line of fragrances and cosmetics called Curious Britney Spears. Beyonce Knowles will be spokeswoman for Tommy Hilfiger's scent True Star. (AP)

Hoping to Raise a Stink

The fragrance industry is looking to celebs to help boost sales by endorsing fragrance lines.

'Tractor Man' Released From Jail

WASHINGTON | The farmer dubbed "Tractor Man" was released from jail Thursday night, one day after a judge drastically reduced his sentence.

Dwight Ware Watson shouted to reporters as he walked from the D.C. Jail to a waiting car, and he appeared to be saying, "Praise the Lord." Watson then got into the back of a tan Honda with Maryland license plates, flashed a peace sign through the window, and was driven off by a man and a woman.

Watson, 51, brought the nation's capital to a standstill on March 17, 2003, when he drove his tractor into the National Mall. Watson told police he had "organophosphate bombs" in a metal box mounted on a trailer he was towing.

On June 23, U.S. District Judge Thomas Penfield Jackson sentenced

Watson to six years in prison. But on Wednesday, Jackson reduced his initial sentence to just 16 months, most of which Watson has already served.

Prosecutors filed an emergency motion to stay the re-sentencing. But on Thursday, the U.S. Court of Appeals for the D.C. Circuit said prosecutors have "not satisfied the stringent standards required for a stay pending appeal." (AP)

WASHINGTON | Metro is taking heat from passengers angry over new two-car trains it runs at night. But the transit agency's top man disputed Thursday whether riders are being left behind.

Some passengers have complained to The Washington Post that were not been able to board crowded two-car trains this week.

Metro CEO Richard White disputed the claims: "Under normal operating circumstances, we're not leaving people on the platform." (AP)

D.C. to Replace Lead Pipes

WASHINGTON | The agency that distributes water to more than 562,000 residents of the nation's capital is about to undertake what is billed as the largest lead service line replacement project ever conducted in the United States.

The D.C. Water and Sewer Authority agreed Thursday to spend $350 million to replace lead service lines over the next six years.

Officials believe a switch from chlorine to chloramines enhanced the rate of corrosion in water pipes. Technicians are now testing whether orthophosphates will form a mineral barrier inside the pipes.

Under Environmental Protection Agency regulations, WASA is required to replace seven percent of its leaded lines each year until lead levels are below 15 parts per billion in water samples.

The agency is now committed to replacing the 23,000 known lines located on public property in the city by Sept. 30, 2010. Crews will also use detection equipment to survey all service lines in D.C. by 2006.

Ever Been Flooded with Anxiety?

- Does your heart start pounding for no particular reason?
- Do you start shaking or sweating without warning?
- Do you feel like you're choking or short of breath?
- Do you feel dizzy, nauseous or lightheaded?
- Are you afraid you might die?

If you are afraid of another attack occurring and these feelings come out of the blue, you may be suffering from an anxiety disorder call Panic Disorder. Howard University, in collaboration with NIMH, is seeking volunteers over 18 years old who are not currently taking any psychiatric medications, to participate in a treatment study. The research is trying to find out if a combination of commonly available medications can rapidly improve symptoms.

Same Old Song

'De-Lovely' is a Cole Porter biopic without a song in its heart

FILM | What an irony that "De-Lovely," the story of Cole Porter, should be so off-key.

All the components are there: a versatile star, Kevin Kline, playing the composer with wit, style and wonderful panache; the music of Porter, performed by such eclectic singers as Elvis Costello, Alanis Morissette and Sheryl Crow; lavish, evocative settings; and a mind-boggling array of to-die-for clothing.

And to their credit, director Irwin Winkler and screenwriter Jay Cocks don't shy away from Porter's homosexuality, unlike some safer depictions of the composer.

Winkler alternates awkwardly between the dying Porter, sitting in an empty theater watching his life unfold before him on stage, and flashbacks to the events

Guiding him through this retrospective is a mystery man named Gabe — an all-too literal reference to the archangel Gabriel — played by Jonathan Pryce, who's relegated to sitting next to Porter and repeatedly saying something along the lines of, "It's your life, Cole," as if we couldn't ascertain that for ourselves.

Porter, meanwhile, sits and marvels at the portrayal of his loyal and long-suffering wife, Linda (Ashley Judd), who knew of his dalliances with beautiful younger men, but stood by him and served as his platonic muse.

"God, she was beautiful," Porter proclaims more than once. And she was, as played by Judd, whose classic looks are a perfect fit for the pin curls and elegant styles of the Jazz Age. (Costume designer Janty Yates is one of the film's real stars.)

But by hitting the highlights of Porter's life, the film feels cursory. We never really understand what drove Porter to write (fame? money? the satisfaction of self-expression?) or what kept him and Linda together for all those years. We are merely told that she loved his music — and who doesn't?

Purists will probably recoil at the very idea of having contemporary pop stars sing classic Porter tunes. But this is actually one of the film's few successful risks.

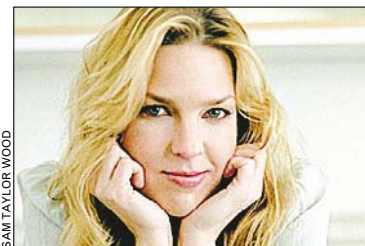

Seeing Morissette belt out "Let's Do It, Let's Fall in Love," Costello jerk and bop his way through "Let's Misbehave" and Crow croon "Begin the Beguine" is an unusual and surreal experience. Using these performances to punctuate a documentary might have been preferable.

The One That Got Away

FILM | "Before Sunset" is a lovely, beguiling little film, a rare treat during this overheated season of blockbusters. It's also an unusual example of a follow-up — to 1995's "Before Sunrise" — that expands effortlessly on the original.

Ethan Hawke and Julie Delpy re-team with director Richard Linklater, with whom they wrote the screenplay, and reveal that their characters, Jesse and Celine, never reconnected in Vienna six months later as they'd promised at the end of the first film.

But here, they end up spending a couple of hours together wandering around Paris, where their banter is just as natural and their chemistry is just as alive.

Jesse, now a novelist living in New York, is there on his book tour. Celine, the Frenchwoman, lives in Paris and walks into the bookstore where Jesse is making an appearance. Despite the passage of nearly a decade, and although they're involved with other people, their mutual attraction is immediate.

They have only a short time

TALKING IT THROUGH: Hawke and Delpy meet again after nine years.

before Jesse has to fly back home, and spend it sharing coffee and cigarettes in a cafe, walking the streets and cruising on a tourist boat. What they do isn't as important, though, as what they say.

"Before Sunset" takes place in real time, and their dialogue never seems stilted; it springs organically and meanders everywhere like real conversations do.

"Our lives could have been so much different," Jesse says.

Who hasn't had an instant spark with someone new and wondered, what if? Everyone who has will find that sentiment depicted here with insight and delicate charm.

THE CONTROL ROOM (unrated, 84 minutes)

Jehane Noujaim's gripping account of the Iraq war as seen through the eyes of the Arab satellite news channel al-Jazeera may be the first movie of the year to qualify as urgently important. Thoughtful, carefully calibrated and often infuriating, this engrossing portrait of competing notions of truth is at once a thrilling real-time chronicle of the birth of a free press and a sophisticated philosophical treatise on the nature of objective reality. (A+)

FAHRENHEIT 9/11 (R, 112 minutes) In a free-wheeling, breathtakingly dense critique of the Bush administration and its reasons for taking the United States into war with Iraq, Michael Moore levels the barbed, often disarmingly funny attacks that have made him so beloved among his fans. As a documentarian, he is less an investigative journalist (not much in "Fahrenheit 9/11" is new) than an essayist seeking to master the satirical brand of overstatement. But there are points about class, politics and media that are well worth pondering once the chatter has subsided. (A+)

DODGEBALL (PG-13, 91 minutes) Ben Stiller's wickedly funny as White Goodman, the Spandex-attired owner of an exclusive fitness center called Globo Gym. Vince Vaughn is also funny as Peter La Fleur, the lackadaisical owner of a rival gym, Average Joe's. The movie's full of down-and-dirty gags, one-liners and memorable scenes between laid-back Peter and the almost psychotically intense White. (D+)

THE NOTEBOOK (PG-13, 121 minutes) File this gooey, over-the-top chick flick under "Wealthy People's Problems," as its female protagonist (Rachel MacAdams) wrinkles her brow and worries whether to marry the guy with the waterfront property or the heir to the cotton fortune. It spoils nothing to divulge that all ends well, although director Nick Cassavetes does everything he can to milk the maximum amount of tragedy from what, properly understood, qualifies as a reasonably happy ending. Audiences craving syrupy confessions have their must-see summer movie. (A+)

THE TERMINAL (PG-13, 128 minutes) Foreign visitor Viktor Navorski (Tom Hanks) lands in New York's JFK airport, only to find himself stateless when his (fictional) country undergoes a military coup. So begins a physically claustrophobic yet highly entertaining caper set in a mini-universe of Starbucks, Borders, escalators and pushcarts. Director Steven Spielberg knows how to make a great story out of relatively little. (D+)

DAVID KOSKAS

Homesick Kumal is one of "Two Brothers," tigers separated young.

TWO BROTHERS (PG, 120 minutes) In French director Jean-Jacques Annaud's tale, two baby tigers are separated and one taken into captivity. Years later, they are goaded into fighting one another. The tigers are fuzzy and adorable, the sentiments—it's immoral to steal or hunt rare species—spot-on and the plot deadly dull. For fans of wild beauty only. (D+)

WHITE CHICKS (pg-13, 105 minutes) In this banshee-howlingly awful caper, Marlon and Shawn Wayans are two disgraced FBI agents doubling for two pampered white heiresses. Cue the Latex breasts, blonde wigs and both Wayans speaking in mall-princess falsetto. (D+)

Television

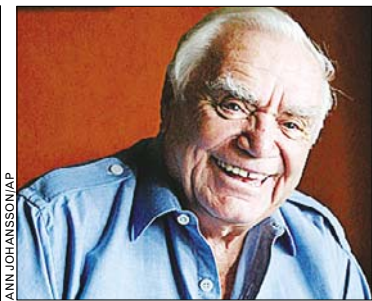

ON TV THIS WEEKEND

WHAT IS GOING ON HERE?

FOOTLOOSE (FRI., 6:30 P.M., VHI) As we recall our nation's fight for independence, let us celebrate our freedom to dance. The fancy footwork continues with the 1983 dancer-welder, torn-sweatshirt classic FLASHDANCE (9 p.m.).

The folks at TCM get a jump start on the Fourth of July weekend with a hooper twofer. Dorothy dons a pair of magic ruby slippers in the beloved 1939 fantasy THE WIZARD OF OZ (8 p.m.). Then, a doomed dancer (Moira Shearer) finds there is no escaping her fate (or her slippers) in the gorgeous 1948 ballet fantasy THE RED SHOES (11 p.m.). This is one of the most beautiful films ever made.

Other foot faves include Leslie Caron in the musical Cinderella story THE GLASS SLIPPER (1:30 a.m.) and the 1960 Buddy Hackett short THE SHOES (3:30 a.m.).

TYPECAST AGAIN: Borgnine plays a boisterous citizen of the Old West.

BORGNINE AT HIS BEST
Stars from three eras converge in the 2004 TV Western THE TRAIL TO HOPE ROSE (Sat., 9 p.m., Hallmark). Lou Diamond Phillips stars as Keenan Deerfield, a former convict who finds himself in a squalid Wild West mining camp run by greedy monopolists. Lee Majors plays the straight-shooting marshal who tries to make everybody play by the rules. Ernest Borgnine rounds out the cast as a big-hearted, boisterous local who wants to help Keenan confound the greedy mine owners.

While this "Rose" offers more thorns than petals, it's always fun to watch an Ernest Borgnine movie. What other Oscar-winning actor (for "Marty") has been in so many truly odd films? A partial list of the actor's stranger film credits include the first version of "Willard," "The Devil's Rain" (in which he played a goat-headed demon), "When Time Ran Out," "The Ravagers," "The Neptune Disaster," "Hannie Caulder," "Deadly Blessing," "The Black Hole" and "Emperor of the North Pole." And that's why we love him.

LIKE, IT'S AWESOME
Proof that no one is too young for reality-TV fabrication: GIRLS V. BOYS: HAWAII (Fri., 8:30 p.m., Noggin/TheN). "Hawaii" follows two teams of 16-year-olds of each gender as they venture to the Aloha State to compete in reality-TV-style games, including "Hog Wild," a messy race to be the first team to pull three flags off the collars of running pigs in a smelly, muddy, urine-filled pigpen. It almost seems like the real contest is for the kids to use as few different words as possible, and all of them are MTV derived cliches like "aight" and "hook up."

SWIMSUIT, EVENINGWEAR, HAIR-PULLING, DRESS-STEALING
AMERICA'S JUNIOR MISS PAGEANT 2004 (Sat., 9 p.m., Pax) airs live from Mobile, Ala.

WE WAIT ALL YEAR FOR THIS
Not every Independence Day tradition connotes red, white and blue. Some traditions come in black and white, like the Sci Fi network's 20-hour TWILIGHT ZONE marathon (Sun., 9 a.m., Sci-Fi).

CULT CHOICE
GHOST WORLD (Sun., 8 p.m., IFC) Disaffected teens (Thora Birch and Scarlett Johansson) toy with a sad-sack record collector (Steve Buscemi).

GO, SONYA!
Does Thomas Jefferson's concept of the pursuit of happiness include the annual

NATHAN'S HOT DOG EATING CONTEST (Sun., noon, ESPN)? Competitive gluttons try to cram as many franks down their gullets as they can in 12 minutes. Japan's Takeru Kobayashi holds the current world record, consuming 50 dogs and buns in 12 minutes in 2001. KEVIN MCDONOUGH (UNITED FEATURE SYNDICATE)

DOGGONE GOOD: Sonya Thomas takes the ladies' gold in Nathan's 2003 contest.

Fireworks, parades: D.C. likes its Fourth fun old-fashioned

OUT & ABOUT | Like many D.C. residents, you are probably planning to stay as far away from the National Mall as possible on the 4th of July. And who could blame you?

With throngs of tourists in red, white and blue regalia (and patriotic partying on their minds) invading downtown, sticking at home in front of the TV (see below) with a tall cold one may seem more enticing.

But let's face it, you can grill hot dogs and light things on fire in your own backyard any day of the week, so why not take part in the District's fine displays of Americana?

The actual fireworks display doesn't start until a little after 9 p.m., but the annual parade, which this year boasts more than 3,000 performers, 50-plus marching bands and military personnel from 13 states, kicks off the festivities at 11:45 a.m. which means you could take in the sights and be back with more than enough time to burn the hamburgers.

Bear in mind, however, that if you stay the rest of the night you can get your dance on with the evening's roster of performers, including Robin Gibb of the Bee Gees and the most wholesome American boy they could get their hands on, Clay

IT DOESN'T GET ANY MORE PATRIOTIC THAN THIS: A couple finds a spot amid the crowds at last year's Fourth of July celebration on the Mall to hear musical performances, watch fireworks and see the capital monuments handsomely alight.

Aiken. Bring your blanket, bug spray, patriotism and a sense of humor — it'll be worth it to catch a glimpse of George W. Bush with "Nightfever." KATIE ANDRIULLI

Staying Home for the 4th

TELEVISION | Pomp, patriotism and pyrotechnics dominate July 4th programming. Stay inside and watch Barry Bostwick host A Capitol Fourth 2004 (8 p.m., PBS) with Vince Gill, Amy Grant, Clay Aiken, Robin Gibb, and the NSO.

Carson Daly hosts the Annual Macy's Fireworks Spectacular (9 p.m., NBC), featuring recently crowned American Idol Fantasia.

Keith Lockhart conducts the Boston Pops Esplanade Orchestra on the Boston Pops Fireworks Spectacular 2004 (10 p.m., CBS). Musical guests include David Lee Roth and Broadway singer Jennifer Holliday.

Kelsey Grammer hosts An American Celebration at Ford's Theatre (10 p.m., ABC), taped earlier before a live audience including the president and first lady. Performers include Patti LaBelle, Jessica Simpson, David

GETTING DOWN | There are a number of events that deserve your attention this holiday weekend, but no matter where you go, don't drink and drive. Take advantage of SoberRide (1-800-200-TAXI) and take a free taxi ride home.

Paul Oakenfold is either the best DJ in the world or one of the best DJs in the world. Either way, the English house maestro is among the most influential. Find out why when Cubik sponsors a special party at the 9:30 Club with DJ Scott Henry and New York's hot Liquid Todd.

Heading downtown for the fireworks? Air is making a special Sunday appearance this week, with doors opening at 5. Arrive early for an outdoor barbecue, drinks and funky downtempo lounge music with DJ Christine Moritz. Go watch the fireworks, then come back to Air for a party soundtrack spun by DJ Gaurav, with no additional cover charge.

If you want to watch the fireworks with a beverage in hand, the top two options are at the Reef, where a rooftop party features an open bar and all-you-can-eat food from 3 p.m. on; and Zanzibar on the Waterfront, where outdoor grills turn out $1 burgers and hot dogs while bartenders sling summer cocktails. After the fireworks, take the party inside with the Lissen Band and DJs. (Dress to impress for Steve Francis's All-White Linen Party on the second floor.)

Each month, the Lovesexy DC (at

In honor of the event, DJ Dredd will have a special tribute set prepared that will stretch out to all the synth-funk goodness that comprises the hits of 1984. The violet-hued decadence goes down at Modern from 7 p.m. until the roof caves in. FRTIZ HAHN AND RHOME ANDERSON

LONELY AT THE TOP: Lance Armstrong begins his quest to become the first cyclist to win the Tour de France six times when the prestigious event starts this weekend.

Lance-a-Lot

Armstrong sets out for an unprecedented 6th championship in France

CYCLING | Lance Armstrong hopes to do what no other cyclist has done, a test so demanding it has blocked the four great champions before him.

He wants to become the first six-time winner of the Tour de France, a punishing ride of 2,126 miles over countryside and mountains, three weeks of pain and sweat that burn the lungs and torment the legs.

Armstrong has won cycling's premier event the past five years, the first of his titles coming when he roared back from cancer. Now, at 32, he gets to see if the competitive fire still burns.

The race begins its great loop Saturday in Liege, Belgium, the latest chapter in what has become one of the biggest rivalries in international sports: Armstrong vs. Jan Ullrich, the German who risks forever carrying the label as perpetual runner-up to the Texan.

Armstrong must again ignore distractions, no easy task for a millionaire celebrity who counts President Bush among his friends and has taken up with singer Sheryl Crow since divorcing his wife, Kristin, after last year's Tour.

He is shadowed by a new book, "L.A. Confidential, The Secrets of

THE OTHER 5-TIME CHAMPS

→ Jacques Anquetil, Eddy Merckx, Bernard Hinault, Miguel Indurain

Lance Armstrong," that insinuates he probably has used drugs. The French-language book by journalists Pierre Ballester and David Walsh hit stores less than three weeks before the start of the race.

Armstrong has faced such accusations before — not least from Tour fans shouting along the route — and responded with lawsuits and an umpteenth denial.

"Extraordinary accusations must be followed with extraordinary proof and Mr. Walsh and Mr. Ballester have worked four or five years and they have not come up with extraordinary proof," he said.

The Texan said he feels stronger than last year, but he isn't ready yet to mull the magical sixth victory that would make Armstrong — if he isn't already — a cycling legend.

"The word legend is to me more than just six letters. That's a big, big word and I'm not sure that I'm ready to talk about that right now," he said.

TV Lineup

→ STARS BRIGHT: D.C. United looks to avenge a loss earlier this season against the first-place MetroStars at RFK Stadium on Saturday (5 p.m. on ESPN2). United currently stands two points behind the MetroStars in the Eastern Conference.

→ TIGER WATCH: Tiger Woods hopes his fortunes — or lack thereof this year — change when he returns to Lemont, Ill., to defend his championship at the Western Open, which concludes on Sunday (3 p.m. on ABC).

Woods

→ OPEN FIELD: The LPGA's best are in South Hadley, Mass., for the U.S. Women's Open, which ends Sunday (3 p.m. on NBC).

→ PHANTASTIC: It's a trip up I-95 for the Baltimore Orioles this weekend, who visit Jim Thome — who has 27 home runs this season — and the Philadelphia Phillies. The teams play Friday (7 p.m. on Comcast), Saturday (7 p.m. on Comcast) and Sunday (1:30 p.m. on UPN20).

Jim Thome leads the majors with 27 home runs.

→ PIT STOP: Jimmie Johnson holds a small lead over Dale Earnhardt Jr. in the Nextel Cup series, which continues on Saturday night (7 p.m. on Fox) with the Pepsi 400 in Daytona Beach, Fla.

→ WIMBLEDON: The women's champion will be crowned Saturday (9 a.m. on NBC) and the men conclude on Sunday (9 p.m. on NBC).

SOCCER | Disarming Brazil will play a friendly soccer match in Haiti in August, with spectators invited to swap firearms for tickets, Brazilian Sports Minister Agnelo Queiroz said. Brazilian Soccer Federation President Ricardo Teixeira said he expects "the entire Brazilian team" to take part in the match, including top stars such as Ronaldo.

Teixeira said tickets will be handed out to the match in exchange for firearms as part of an effort at disarming rival factions in the country. The idea of a Brazil-Haiti matchup was first suggested by Haitian Prime Minister Gerard Latortue, who said such a game would help "alleviate tensions" on the troubled island. (AP)

Wie the People

Teenagers fill the field of this weekend's U.S. Women's Open

WOMEN'S GOLF | Michelle Wie is the most famous teenager in golf.

That doesn't mean she's the best.

Not yet, anyway.

The 14-year-old from Hawaii showed up at the U.S. Women's Open with plenty of company — a record 16 teenagers in the 156-player field at Orchards Golf Club.

Topping the list is Paula Creamer, the 17-year-old Californian with an engaging smile and a game that is only now starting to get noticed.

Creamer starred at the Curtis Cup last month. With matches tied at 6 going into the Sunday singles, Creamer was sent out in the first match against the best from Great Britain and Ireland, Emma Duggleby, beating her 3 and 2 to give the United States an emotional lift on its way to a 10-8 victory.

When they returned home, Wie went to the men's Amateur Public Links and failed to qualify by one shot. Creamer competed on the LPGA

Tour and finished second, one shot behind Cristie Kerr, at the ShopRite Classic. Wie has never been higher than fourth on the LPGA, although that was at the Kraft Nabisco Championship, a major.

The following week, Wie lost in the finals of the Women's Amateur Public Links, a noble effort considering the vagaries of match play and the pressure she faced as defending champion.

Creamer continued her tour of the LPGA and tied for 12th in Rochester, N.Y., on a tough course.

Creamer was baited into talk of a rivalry on Tuesday, but she refused to take even a nibble and at one point started laughing even before the question was posed.

Do you want to beat Michelle? "I try to play the golf course, really," Creamer said, stifling a smile. "I would like to beat anybody I play. But there's not one person that I try to beat." DOUG FERGUSON (AP)

'Special Moment'

Williams advances to Wimbledon final, eyes third-straight title

WIMBLEDON | Serena Williams rallied from a set and 3-1 down — winning three key points with a cracked racket — to defeat Amelie Mauresmo and advance to the Wimbledon final for the third straight year.

Williams, trying to become the third woman in 35 years to win three consecutive titles, won 6-7 (4), 7-5, 6-4 in a topsy-turvy match full of drama, momentum swings, spectacular shots and animated displays of emotion by both players.

"I didn't have a game today," Williams said. "I just really had heart, that's all. I kept fighting."

Williams will face 17-year-old Maria Sharapova in Saturday's final. Sharapova, who also came back from a set and 3-1 down, beat former champion Lindsay Davenport, 2-6, 7-6 (5), 6-1 to confirm her reputation as the biggest new star in the game.

Sharapova is the youngest Wimbledon finalist since Martina Hingis, who won the title in 1997 at 16, and the third youngest to reach the women's title match. The youngest was Lottie Dod, who won the championship in 1887 at 15.

Sharapova is also the first Russian woman to reach the Wimbledon final since Olga Morozova, who lost to Chris Evert in 1974.

It took nearly 2 1/2 hours for Williams to overcome Mauresmo, who received treatment several times on her lower back but pushed the champion to the limit.

"This is definitely the most special moment in my career, right now," Williams said. STEPHEN WILSON (AP)

HIV VACCINE RESEARCH. REAL PEOPLE. REAL PROGRESS.

"I'm fighting to stop a killer."

HIV is a killer. I'm a witness. I have buried babies. I have buried old people and young people. People like me, people like you. HIV is serious, so my life's work is helping others learn about it and prevent it.

Today, thousands of researchers, medical professionals and volunteers are committed to discovering a vaccine that prevents HIV and stopping this epidemic. To them, I say, 'Thank you, I'm with you.'

Mark Del Monte
Community Worker

Help STOP a killer... Join the growing number of volunteers who have made a difference by helping science investigate preventive HIV vaccines.

If you are between 18-44 years old, healthy and HIV negative, consider being a participant in an investigational, preventive HIV vaccine research study, or just to inquire, call: 1-866-833-LIFE or visit our website at www.vrc.nih.gov

It is impossible to become infected from the vaccine because of how these new products are made.

All participants receive financial compensation and free study-related exams.

Coach Hunting

Lakers, Krzyzewski in 'serious discussions' about coaching job

BASKETBALL | Duke's Mike Krzyzewski met with Los Angeles Lakers general manager Mitch Kupchak on Thursday and was in "serious discussions" with the team about its coaching vacancy.

Krzyzewski, a 57-year-old Hall of Famer, has led the Blue Devils to three national championships in almost a quarter-century at the school.

"Coach K has informed us that

the Los Angeles Lakers have contacted him and entered into serious discussions to fill their vacant head coaching position," Duke athletic director Joe Alleva said.

Lakers spokesman John Black said Kupchak met with Krzyzewski. "They talked about our coaching vacancy," he said.

Black said the team hasn't made a decision, and was considering several other candidates to replace Phil Jackson. The Lakers announced June 18 — three days after losing to the Detroit Pistons in the NBA Finals — that Jackson wouldn't return as coach next season.

Krzyzewski has a 621-179 record in 24 seasons at Duke, leading the Blue Devils to NCAA championships in 1991, 1992 and 2001. Under Krzyzewski, the Blue Devils have 10 Final Four appearances, eight Atlantic Coast Conference tournament championships and 10 conference regular-season titles.

Former Rockets coach Rudy Tomjanovich has been considered the front-runner to succeed Jackson. He met with team owner Jerry Buss and Kupchak last week. Former Lakers coach Pat Riley, an executive with the Miami Heat, also met with Buss and Kupchak, but issued a statement saying he wasn't a candidate.

Among others mentioned have been Kurt Rambis and Jim Cleamons, members of Jackson's staff. AARON BEARD (AP)

WHO KNEW? When the Detroit Pistons beat the Lakers this year, Larry Brown became the first head coach to win both the NCAA championship and the NBA title. (AP)

French Undressing

Discreetly tucked away in Penn Quarter like a handkerchief in a lady's glove, COUP DE FOUDRE (1001 Pennsylvania Ave. NW; 202-393-0878; Metro: Metro Center) is what Victoria (as in Secret) would be had she attended finishing school. Rose-petal-scented air wafts over racks filled with upscale, mostly European labels — Lisa Charnel, Hanro, Cosabella and Aubade — as are independent designers like D.C.'s Belabumbum. Attentive owner Valerie Lucas provides disposable thongs in the perfectly lit fitting rooms, which are equipped with adjustable 360-degree mirrors for the brave and body-confident. Most bras and camisoles range between $45 and $90; matching panties are $15 and up. Free bra fitting is available — which you might need, as some of the European brands are cryptically sized I through 5 — and larger sizes may have to be special ordered, since D-cups were in short supply. STITCH DC (731 8th Street SE; 202-544-8900; Metro: Eastern Market), the city's first specialty knit and crochet store, is now open for business, and owner Marie Connolly has made it a decidedly unfumpy place. Airy and well-lit, with plump skeins of yarn stacked into colorful pyramids along the walls, the store is both modern and welcoming. Connolly stocks a wide selection of material, including yarn by Debbie Bliss, Noro, Blue Sky Alpaca, Manos del Uruguay and Karabella, and an assortment of specialty books, patterns and tools. And if Grandma never taught you how to knit, don't worry, the store plans to hold regular classes for all skill levels ($95 for four two-hour classes; see www.stitchdc.com for more info). Open knitting sessions begin Sunday, July 11 from 3-5 pm. Aunt Bea would approve. J.K.

Restoration Hardware Is Jealous

Are you proud to be an American? Heigh your patriotic self to THE OLD FARMER'S ALMANAC GENERAL STORE (8200 Perry Hall Blvd., Baltimore; 410-931-0272). Incongruously located in White Marsh Mall next to Macy's, the establishment sells items inspired by the enduringly folksy "Old Farmer's Almanac." Shoppers seeking a historically authentic retail experience (spiced by the Almanac's ever-present astrological imagery) can admire the storefront's corrugated tin roof, walk on the deliberately creaky wooden floor, then buy a piece of history in the form of tableware, soaps, candles and other items for the stylish Yankee home. Old-fashioned American foodstuffs are also available, tempting shoppers to forgo the food court and pick up a jar of homemade canned preserves or a pouch of hickory-smoked salmon jerky instead. J.K.

Rania to Thief: You Won't Like Me When I'm Angry

Hundreds of watches and about 1,000 pieces of silver cutlery commissioned by Jordan's QUEEN RANIA were stolen from Danish silversmith Georg Jensen, police said Tuesday. The thieves apparently broke into the Copenhagen shop over the weekend, taking valuables worth an estimated $774,200. The cutlery ordered by Rania, wife of King Abdullah II, was engraved with crowns, inscriptions and the Jordanian royal family's monogram. (AP)

Fan Steps Out, Falls On Blvd. of Broken Dreams

TONY BENNETT is demanding that auction organizers refund the $15,000 winning bid for a "Dinner with Tony Bennett," his manager said Wednesday. Gary Pusateri thought he was paying for a private dinner with the singer. Instead, he and more than 100 others got a handshake. "It was a big disappointment," Pusateri said. "I really wanted to be with him. That's why I bid extra." The money went to support research at Johns Hopkins Hospital. (EXPRESS)

'Jude, My Hair Hurts'

JUDE LAW and girlfriend SIENNA MILLER showed up at Wimbledon on Wednesday for the men's singles quarterfinal between Britain's Tim Henman and Croatia's Mario Ancic. To the disappointment of all, they did virtually nothing interesting, mostly just watching the game and each other. (EXPRESS)

UPDATE

Catherine, Kirk — Let's Just Be Friends

In an undated letter addressed to Catherine Zeta-Jones and her father-in-law, Kirk Douglas, DAWNETTE KNIGHT said she wants "to apologize for any distress I have caused you and your families." Knight, who is being held on $1 million bail and who pleaded not guilty to felony charges of stalking the actress, said she would "have never done anyone any harm and would never harm anyone," but also admitted interest in Zeta-Jones's husband. "I was a confused young woman infatuated with Michael Douglas and have not rational explanations for my actions," her letter said. Knight asked for forgiveness so that she can return to college and finish her studies in child psychology. (AP)

De-Good and De-Lovely

ASHLEY JUDD will visit Cambodia next week to raise AIDS awareness and to launch new health products and services, a U.N. program said Thursday. The star of "De-Lovely" also will visit Thailand and attend this month's international AIDS conference in Bangkok, according to YouthAIDS, run by the nonprofit Population Services International. Her visits will include trips to clinics and schools to speak with children about the threat of catching HIV. (AP)

LITIGATION

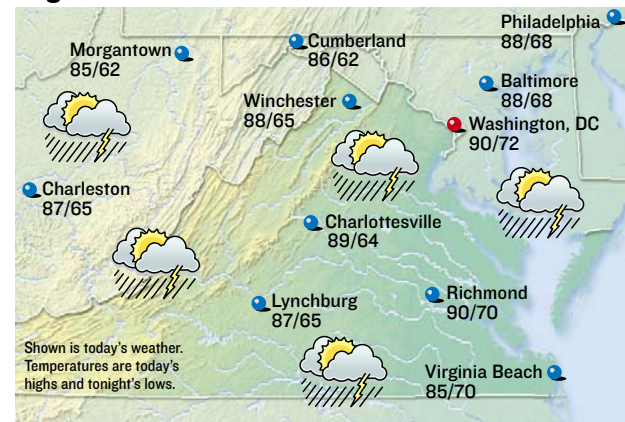

Limp Bizkit Fans Lose

A Michigan court unanimously ruled in favor of FRED DURST's Limp Bizkit Wednesday. Former fan Christopher Dickinson sued the band for medical costs after he was kicked in the head at a 2000 concert when Durst invited the audience to the main floor, causing people to rush toward the stage. The court ruled that the band was not liable. (EXPRESS)

TO THE EDITOR

THE ARTICLE ABOUT Youssou N'Dour, "Grace Under Fire," (July 1) highlighted a talented artist who combines his culture and religion in music. That the last line read, "This is an Islam that's radical for beauty," not only taints the rest of the article, but illustrates the normalization and acceptance of a terrible stereotype of Islam. Islam is a religion of peace. The vast majority of the world's 1 billion Muslims are peaceful individuals. Let's stop taking the stereotype of radicalism derived from a tiny minority and applying it to the entire religion of Islam.

—HANAA RIFA'Y
Washington, D.C.

YOUR STORY "D.C. to Drivers: Put Down Cell Phones," (June 30) reported that only "hands free" phones would be permissible while driving. But I'd say all phones are equally distracting. Cell phone use demands 100 percent interaction, especially when there are no convenient hells in a conversation. The government really should count all types of phones in its behind-the-wheel ban.

Horoscope | Stella Wilder

CANCER (June 21-July 22) — It's easy to do or say the wrong thing — especially early on, when you are still assessing the moods of those around you.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) — Others are sure to have distinct and lasting impressions of you — and you'll want to work with them, rather than against them.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) — The possible will be clearly recognizable, but impossible may be disguised. Trial-and-error is the only way to go.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) — You'll be recognized by some as a person who can do the impossible — but others you'll have to persuade over time.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21) — Your continued efforts to heal a family rift will be more appreciated and successful than they have been in the recent past.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21) — Excuses are not enough; you must be willing to modify your behavior to preclude the possibility of further error.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) — Keep lines of communication open, especially if you're expecting contact from afar. Answer correspondence as soon as possible.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) — Now is no time to play games with someone you love; a straightforward, honest approach, though difficult, is sure to provide satisfaction.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20) — You may find yourself engaged in a battle of wits, but you're better equipped to prevail. You know what you want and how to get it.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) — Your chances for advancement are good. Concentrate on your primary motives. See to it that you are taken seriously.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) — Your preference for privacy will be a driving motivator throughout the day — though you won't be able to avoid all social responsibilities.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) — Your willingness to explore the unusual may lead you into a few eye-opening encounters. You'll be tempted to dominate social situations.

Chief Ramsey

From washingtonpost.com/liveonline

D.C. Police Chief CHARLES H. RAMSEY was online Thursday and discussed security precautions for the Fourth of July, bank robberies in the metro area and snakehead fish.

What sort of coordination is done between D.C. police and other security-policing agencies on the ground for the Fourth of July?

There is constant discussion and collaboration among law enforcement agencies in our region — federal, state and local. For example, the Coast Guard coordinates its patrols along with the MPD's Harbor Patrol Branch. In addition, our air patrols are frequently coordinated with the U.S. Park Police. And this weekend, these and other agencies will be in our Joint Operations Command Center as we monitor events this holiday weekend and coordinate our efforts.

Since the recent bank robbers on Connecticut Avenue were so heavily armed, how do you help to ensure the safety of your own men?

I am very concerned about this particular bank robbery crew because they are so heavily armed. Officers have been instructed to pay particular attention around banks, looking for anything suspicious or unusual. When responding to a call of a bank robbery in progress, officers have been told to approach with caution and wait for backup. Citizens should be aware of the robberies that have been taking place in both D.C. and Prince George's County, and if they see anything unusual around a bank to call 911 immediately. Do not attempt to intervene directly.

Does the Metropolitan Police Department have any enforcement responsibility for keeping snakehead fish out of the area?

I have a lot of things on my plate, but fortunately snakehead fish are not one of them :)
